DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Burgess (U.S. 5,796,633) and Lau (U.S., 6,101,500).

As per claims 1,5,17,21 Burgess disclosed a data processing apparatus which can communicate data through a network to each of a plurality of computers and a plurality of peripheral devices connected to said network, comprising: display means for displaying said plurality of computers and said plurality of peripheral devices as symbol information onto a virtual system display screen (col. 5, lines 33-41);

However Burgess failed to disclose first discriminating means for discriminating a licenser computer having a license server function for giving a predetermined license from said plurality of computers to said data processing apparatus; and first control means for controlling the computer discriminated by said first discriminating means so as to be displayed in a manner such that it can be identified from other devices on said virtual system display screen.

In the same field of endeavor Lau disclosed MS-DOS operating systems from Microsoft Corporation, the Unix Operating system available from many Vendors, such as Sun Microsystems, Inc. and the Hewlett-Packard Corporation, or the Net ware or Intranet- Ware operating systems available from Novell, Incorporated (windows and MS-Dos are registered trademark in the United States licensed exclusively through X/Open Company, Ltd, NetWare and Intranet Ware are registered trademarks of Novell, Incorporated) (col. 9, lines 15-25).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to have incorporated first discriminating means for discriminating a licensor computer having a license server function for giving a predetermined license from said plurality of computers to said data processing apparatus; and first control means for controlling the computer discriminated by said first discriminating means so as to be displayed in a manner such that it can be identified from other devices on said virtual system display screen as taught by Lau in the method of Burgess to allow easy tracking of the configuration of computers in the network.

3. As per claims 2,6,10,14,18,22 Burgess-Lau disclosed further comprising: second discriminating means for discriminating licensee computers to which the license has been given from said licensor computer discriminated by said first discriminating means from said plurality of computers (Lau, col. 9, lines 54-67); and second control means for controlling the computers discriminated by said second discriminating means so as to be displayed in a manner such that they can be identified from other devices on said virtual system display screen (Lau, col. 10, lines 47-56).

4. As per claims 3,7,11,15,19,23 Burgess-Lau disclosed further comprising: third discriminating means for discriminating a server device having an image input server function which can be used by said data processing apparatus from said plurality of computers (Burgess, col. 5, lines 7-16); third control means for controlling the server device discriminated by said third discriminating mean so as to be displayed in a manner such that it can be identified from other devices on said virtual system display screen (Burgess, col. 9, lines 35-50); selecting means for selecting a symbol on said virtual system display screen; and service supplying means for supplying a common service to each of said licensee computers to which the license has been given from the selected licensor computer in accordance with a fact that said licensor computer and said server device have been selected by said selecting means (Lau, col. 9, lines 54-67).

5. As per claims 4 Burgess-Lau disclosed wherein the service which is supplied by said service supplying means includes a distribution service for distributing same data to each of said licensee computers (Lau, col. 9, lines 16-31). A data processing apparatus which can communicate data through a network to each of a plurality of computers and a plurality of peripheral devices connected to said network, comprising: display means for displaying said plurality of computers and said plurality of peripheral devices onto a virtual system display screen (Lau, col. 12, lines 23-49); first discriminating means for discriminating a licensor computer having a license server function for giving a license from said plurality of computers to said data processing apparatus (Lau, col. 13, lines 1-22) ; and first control means for controlling the computer discriminated by said first discriminating means so as to be displayed in a manner such that it can be identified from other devices on said virtual system display screen (Burgress, col. 9, lines 51-63).

6. As per claims 9,13 has the same limitations as to claims 1 and 5 therefore under the same relations claim 9 can be rejected.

7. As per claims 8,12,16,20,24 Burgess-Lau disclosed wherein the service which is supplied by said service supplying step includes a distribution service for distributing same data to each of said licensee computers (Burgress, col. 9, lines 52-63).
